Not able to do that. I have a dual boot, 2 Windows and 2 linux distros. My linux distros are either Ubuntu or PC Linux OS. I have tried everything, I have used hiddemanager, hiddeutils and hamachi-gui. I was able to connect when using Hamachi-GUI to my Windows systems, but when I try and use Hamachi-GUI with Linux I get the following error message: Ignoring public key

Failed to parse/validate the key file: /etc/apt/trusted.gpg I have had this problem before but for some reason now it isn't working. Any help is greatly appreciated. A: The problem is that the use of public key authentication requires a public key that has been installed in the client system. You can run `sudo apt-key adv --keyserver keyserver.ubuntu.com --recv-keys` or `sudo apt-`

`key adv --keyserver keyserver.ubuntu.com --recv-keys` if your package sources are set up to do this. Note that there is a difference between public key authentication and encryption of a key. With public key authentication, all that is required is that a public key has been published that matches the private key (or parts of it) that was generated when the system was installed or obtained otherwise. It doesn't matter if the client system has an installed copy of that public key or not. Nina Stensrud
